CELEBRATE 25 YEARS OF NEAHMA'S CONFERENCE! WIN A REGISTRATION THROUGH AN EASY SURVEY

This year NEAHMA celebrates our 25th Conference & Trade Show anniversary. The two-day event will take place again at the Four Points Hotel in Norwood, MA, on October 15 & 16, 2013. The first day will consist of workshops, tradeshow exhibits and the awards dinner. On the second day we will offer three different full-day trainings: Advanced Tax Credits, Fair Housing Compliance, and REAC training. Members will have an opportunity to earn six continuing education units (CEUs) each day for a total of 12 CEUs.

As a fun way to help us celebrate our conference's Silver Anniversary, we thought it would be cool to post 25 questions and give our members an opportunity to win a free registration to this year's conference!

To enter the contest, click on the Monkey Survey link that is posted on our home page at www.neahma.org. Answer all 25 multiple-choice questions correctly and your name will be entered into the drawing.

Answers must be received by May 17, 2013. Each person is allowed one chance to win. Winners will also have an opportunity to have their name and photo in the next NEAHMA News.

If you have any questions, please email julie.kelliher@neahma.org.

Good Luck!

FILL VACANCIES FASTER WITH NEAHMA'S NEW SEARCH ENGINE!

NEAHMA is pleased to announce the endorsement of Rental Housing Deals.com, the fastest-growing affordable housing listing service, as a preferred provider of online marketing and advertisement for our members.

Rental Housing Deals.com is designed to help prospective residents locate affordable rental housing based upon their specific needs and wants. Rental Housing Deals.com's objective in working with NEAHMA is to provide a simple and effective tool to help property managers in New England fill vacancies and to increase accessibility to affordable housing programs.

In addition, Rental Housing Deals.com hopes to increase the value of NEAHMA's service to our members by creating an online search engine that will be incorporated into the NEAHMA website. Prospective residents can then use our webpage to find a member apartment community in their area of interest.

There are two types of listings: the BASIC listing is FREE to every NEAHMA member; however, to showcase your property, an upgraded PREMIUM listing is available for a minimal fee of only $3.50 per unit, per year, which entitles you to the following features:

- Name, description, and location of your property
- Property photos, floor plans and amenities
- Online application leads, residential referral leads, and phone and e-mail leads
- Income limits and qualifications
- Link to community portfolio
- Positive reviews and comments filter
- Mapping and driving directions
- Contact information for the property

In our opinion, this is a tremendous marketing opportunity for our members, and we hope that you will agree. For example, a 60-unit property can sign up for the premium listing for only $210 annually. This amount is less expensive than a single week of advertising in most local newspapers.

We are not suggesting that online marketing will eliminate the need to advertise locally, but as the internet becomes more and more a part of our everyday lives, we believe it necessary for our industry to embrace and utilize this opportunity—and this is the best opportunity we have seen.

In addition to an effective and affordable marketing tool for your property, the members subscribing to the PREMIUM package will be supporting the NEAHMA training program. For every paid listing, Rental Housing Deals.com will donate a percentage back to NEAHMA.

In order to ensure that NEAHMA's new property map provides the most accurate and useable information, we are requesting members who wish to participate contact Julie Kelliher at 781-380-4344 or by email at julie.kelliher@neahma.org for the appropriate forms. Multiple properties can be listed on a single spreadsheet. For those desiring to subscribe to the PREMIUM listing, once we receive your spreadsheet, Rental Housing Deals.com will follow up with you to solicit photos in order to complete the listing process.

Julie Kelliher is Executive Director of NEAHMA.

EMERGENCY, EMERGENCY!

By Diane Van Lear

“How can I reduce the amount of money we spend on ‘emergency’ purchases?”

This is a great question often asked by multifamily housing professionals. Here are some practical ways to either mitigate, or greatly reduce, these expenses.

HAVE A PLAN IN PLACE. This includes having a list of approved emergency vendors. Failure to do so can lead to inefficiencies such as higher costs for standard items, use of inferior substitute items, use of unauthorized vendors, trips off site, and overtime charges. One recent analysis performed for a Buyers Access client revealed an increase of over 20 percent charged by the use of an unauthorized vendor. This increase included the extra time involved in an offsite purchase and reconciling an invoice to an unauthorized vendor. How can this drag on net operating income (NOI) be avoided?

BE REALISTIC ABOUT WHAT CAN AND SHOULD BE REDUCED. True emergency spending will never go away 100 percent, but in many cases the term “emergency” is used only to help justify an unplanned purchase. Establish ground rules as to what constitutes a true emergency. Consultants have identified several ways to improve efficiency, increase service levels and reduce the incidences of false alarms. Once the ground rules have been set, communicate the plan to your team, and designate a leader to go to with questions.

AN OUNCE OF PREVENTION IS WORTH A POUND OF CURE. One practical way to reduce emergency expenses is to perform scheduled property inspections. These can detect potential emergencies waiting to happen. Key vendors are invaluable in this process. Call your vendor partners to schedule qualified inspections by HVAC, plumbing, and electrical contractors. Many of the true vendor partners will provide this service for little or no cost.

PRACTICE MAKES PERFECT. Review emergency procedures on a consistent basis. Our account management team can assist with this review and identify additional solutions to further reduce costs associated with emergencies. Ultimately, these steps not only improve your NOI but your residents’ experience through more timely resolution of their requests.

Peabody Properties Goes Lean on Green

Peabody Properties, Inc. – a Braintree-based, full service real estate firm managing in excess of 10,000 housing units throughout New England – recently announced taking its commitment to energy conservation to the next level by going “LEAN on green.”

In 2012, Peabody Properties established a long-term relationship with the Low-income Energy Affordability Network (LEAN) and Action for Boston Community Development (ABCD), organizations dedicated to reducing operational expenses for affordable housing properties. LEAN and ABCD help the owners and managers of affordable housing properties navigate incentive programs made available through numerous utility companies.

To date, 16 properties have completed the application, audit and approval process and have received a full building overhaul, including common-area lighting and the installation of energy-efficient appliances. As a result of this initiative, Peabody Properties projects conservation of an estimated 2.2 million kWh of electricity annually, representing a savings of $435,000.

With 10 additional properties in the audit pipeline and more than 20 in the application phase, the Peabody Properties’ conservation campaign is off to a strong start in 2013.

According to Michael Ferguson, vice president of facilities and capital planning at Peabody Properties, a typical multifamily housing complex has a multitude of spaces, including hallways, stairwells and common areas, which are often illuminated when not in use. “Over the past several months we’ve made a concerted effort – with the help of LEAN and ABCD – to evaluate the energy used at our affordable housing properties. For example, we’ve found that in properties designed for seniors, stairwells have a 2 percent use rate, yet are illuminated 100 percent of the time,” he said.

“This is the type of data we’re using to alter and improve some of our basic practices. These simple changes help make Peabody Properties a greener firm.”

Upgrades include converting established lighting in common areas from fluorescent to LED technology, which uses approximately 60 percent less energy, and adding occupancy sensing devices to conserve additional energy in little-used spaces. A new combination of 50,000 hour bulbs and LED converted exterior-building and pole-mounted lighting conserves energy and lowers the costs of bulb replacement.

Peabody Properties has also installed Energy Star rated refrigerators, said to use 50 percent less energy, in an effort to help residents reduce their carbon footprints and help lower electric bills.

Properties that have already completed the LEAN application, audit and approval process include Kelly House in Dorchester; Fairhaven Village in Fairhaven; Bedford Towers and Melville Towers in New Bedford; Seton Manor in Brighton; Lamplighter Village in Canton; Capitol Square in Arlington; Angela Westover House, Nate Smith House, and Pondview Apartments in Jamaica Plain; Chelsea Village Apartments in Chelsea; Humbolt Apartments and Van Ness Terrace in Roxbury; Mt. Pleasant Apartments in Somerville; Victory Gardens in Boston; and Adams Templeton Place in Dorchester.
