

NAHMA Announces Comprehensive Redesign of its Website

The National Affordable Housing Management Association (NAHMA) today announced that its website, www.nahma.org, has been re-launched with a comprehensive redesign of its appearance, navigation tools and overall functionality.

The new NAHMA website is designed to instantly adapt to whatever device is being used to access it, so that visitors can easily view it on smartphones, tablets and laptops and other computers, with full functionality available.

The redesign blends a more modern look with easy-to-use navigation capabilities that bring forward all of the vital content provided to NAHMA members and other visitors to the site. E-commerce functionality has been updated and improved, and a site search function added. Resources limited to members are accessible using the website's current system of member usernames and passwords.

“NAHMA's new website is exciting and dynamic! As technology advances so does NAHMA and our efforts to improve membership services,” said NAHMA President Gianna Solari, SHCM, NAHP-e, FHC. “An exciting portion of the webpage and a personal favorite of mine is the Grassroots Advocacy Toolkit. Under that tab you will find a variety of tools to assist the novice advocator to the most experienced advocator. Please take full advantage of all the toolkit webpage – and the entire website – has to offer!”

Also contained in the Advocacy area of the website is NAHMA Maps, which is also accessible on any mobile device. Using this feature, NAHMA members can search and display listings of affordable housing properties by state, county and congressional district, and find the list of and direct contact information for a state or district's congressmen.

For questions, comments or suggestions on the new NAHMA Maps features or website redesign, contact NAHMA staff member Scott McMillen at scott.mcmillen@nahma.org. (If an older version of a NAHMA website page loads in your browser instead of a new page, click on “refresh” and the new page should appear.)
